
2/72 B Conflict upon representing student when employed by college

An attorney who was employed part-time as a member of a research project for a state university for a three-year period, who later sought to represent a university student who sought relief from an adverse ruling of the board of regents, which ruling was made while the lawyer was employed on the project, cannot properly accept such private representation under DR 5-107(D) unless the university or college authorities and the client both consent to such representation.
