
4/77 B Disclosure of trust account records

It would be improper for an attorney to make disclosures concerning the funds in his/her clients' trust accounts to anyone other than the individual clients without their permission. Consequently, an attorney who is a party in a divorce action should not respond to a subpoena requiring that s/he produce trust account records.